

SANTA ROSA SUNSET

FOR ELISSA FISHER HARRIS

MUSIC & LYRICS BY ZARA NUNN

VERSE

If the rain isn't healing
The pain that you're feeling
When life leaves you reeling time and again
Reach into the pages, little girl
And pretty soon your skies will clear

'Cause the wisdom you're earning
From the things that you're learning
Stops the fear from returning over again
And if you reach into the pages, little girl
You'll find a way to persevere
But in the meantime:

CHORUS

Your Santa Rosa sunset is all that you need So hold your nerve and set your big plans in motion
Each battle that you win
It plants a seed in your heart
As big as the ocean

VERSE

So now you feel as if a force has awoken
And the future has spoken
Yet your spirit is broken over again
And when you ask inside the pages, little girl
You think there's no one who can hear

But the echoes from 'The Avenue,'
They ring through the ages
As five thousand voices below out from the crowd
Standing song, singing loud

INTERLUDE

In the depths of the darkness you're fighting
Take a step, carry on all the same
Every inch is a spark you're igniting
And the fire that you start will change the game

Every inch a spark, a spark igniting
The fire will change the game

VERSE

The very many lives you'll repair
As all the stories you share
Provide unique ways to care again and again
You'll write your history in the pages, little girl
And blaze a trail for all to see
But in the meantime:

CHORUS

Your Santa Rosa sunset will show you the way
So make your choices bold with no hesitating
And maybe now it seems so far away
But believe me, wonders are waiting

CODA

Believe me, wonders are waiting
Santa Rosa flame
And the fire that you start will change the

In the darkness you're fighting
Take a step, carry on just the same
Every inch is a spark you're igniting
