

JUST A LITTLE

FOR JANET SALAZAR

MUSIC BY BELLA BARLOW

LYRICS BY A.C. SMITH

VERSE

Do you like numbers?
Listen to these
U.N. member countries:
One hundred ninety three
Years of existence:
Seventy
Guess how many of those years have had a woman lead?
Zero. Interesting.
I think it's about time
We hear a new song
So let's live by our principles
And right what's wrong

You gotta raise the bar just a little
Just a little, just a little
And then raise it a little more
Oh yes, success
'Cause just a little here, and a little there
Can add up to a whole world of change if we all care
You've gotta raise the bar
Be bold and push it far
You've gotta break the mold
Rock the boat, just start from where you are
And you'll see the wave ripple
And it'll start with just a little
Just a little, just a little

CHORUS

You gotta rock the boat a little
Just a little, just a little
Don't just sit back and let others row
Oh no, oh no
'Cause just a little here, and a little there
Can add up to quite a lot of change everywhere
You gotta rock the boat
It's the quickest antidote

You gotta break the mold a little
Just a little, just a little
No need to stick to the status quo
Oh no, oh no
'Cause just a little here, and a little there
Can add up to quite a lot of change if you dare
You gotta break the mold
Make the future manifold

You start with just a little
But aim for quite a lot
You'll never believe the support you'll receive
To achieve till you give it a shot
